In our editorial rooms-which, fronting as they do on the broad open space of the City Hall Park, are unusually coolthe mercury in the thermometer stood as follows:

At 12 m., 88° At 2 p. m., 90° At 5 p. m., 911° At 1 p. m., 89° At 3 p. m., 91° At 6 p. m., 95° If the day and lasted much longer, no doubt the thermometer would have mounted to the roof. It was to tensely hot everywhere, and pedestrians hugged the shady sides of the streets, and the juvenile boot blacks refused to perform their sable offices except at an advance upon regular rates. Most of the flower and fruit venders in Broadway crept out of the burning sun; and those who did not invested their day's profits in cotton umbreilas, reckless of expenditure and recking with perspiration. We thought longingly of that region of Dante's "Informo," in which souls are blown about by icy winds, and envied the disembodied spirits, and rished we knew what they did in life to incur the dolfcious curse of getting there, that we might join them in that blessed, because cool, abode. About seven in the orening the skies clouded, the wind blow gratefully, the lightning flashed through the heavens, and the muchwished tempost burst in dreaching fury over the swelloring Metropolis.
